Founded on March 6, 1998, IICCP's core mission is to foster the internationalization of the science of psychology. This translates into the following objectives at the international and local levels: (1) to sponsor research and publications in international and cross-cultural psychology; (2) to create a network of ties with other interested psychological institutions in the US and abroad; (3) to promote cross-cultural awareness at St. Francis College by developing classes, workshops, symposia, and conferences; (4) to involve students in cross-cultural research; and (5) to foster a sense of appreciation of the cultural richness in the St. Francis College community. Members of the institute are active locally, nationally, and internationally.

The Director of the Institute, Uwe P. Gielen, received his Ph.D. in social psychology from Harvard University. His work has centered on international psychology and moral development. He is a former president of the International Council of Psychologists (ICP), the Society for Cross-Cultural Research (SCCR), and APA's International Psychology Division. The Institute's Director of Student Affairs, Renée Goodstein, received her Ph.D. from Fordham University. She practices psychotherapy with a specialization in multiculturalism.

Students play an important role in the activities of the institute. Each semester, one to two student assistants help to keep the institute going by editing papers, proof-reading chapters and articles for professional journals, involvement in research activities, marketing events, helping to set up guest lectures and conferences, and advising students about psychology. Members of the Psi Chi Chapter and the Psychology Club also lend their support to the institute.

Every year, APA Division 52 (International Psychology) selects one book for the Ursula Gielen Global Psychology Book Award. The award is presented to the author(s) or editor(s) of a book that adds greatly to our understanding of global phenomena and problems from a psychological point of view. The award committee is chaired by Renée Goodstein, Ph.D., with Uwe P. Gielen as an ex-officio member.

Continuing Projects and Research

- Growing Up Chinese in New York City
In this broadly conceived project, a research team headed by Uwe P. Gielen, Ting Lei (CUNY), and Jonathan Palumbo is exploring the acculturation of 14-33 year old male and female Chinese Americans residing in New York City. The project includes autobiographical essays by Chinese American students as well as interviews with them that are designed to elucidate their cultural belief systems, socialization experiences, and attitudes toward their families, peers, schools, and Chinese as well as American culture.
- DVD: International Psychology: What Students Need to Know (with Judy Kuriansky, Teachers College Columbia University)
This 35-minute DVD, which is sponsored by the International Division of the American Psychological Association, introduces students and others to the field of international psychology. It includes interviews with prominent international psychologists and interested students. The DVD is available free of charge from IICCP.
- The Global Obama: Crossroads of Leadership in the 21st Century (2014)
Senior Research Fellow Dinesh Sharma and Uwe P. Gielen have recently published this edited book (Routledge). In it a group of prominent social scientists from countries located around the world analyzes global perceptions of Obama's leadership style and his international policies. The contributors to the volume include prominent social scientists from countries located around the globe.
- Therapy across Borders: International and Cross-Cultural Case Studies
Designed as a companion volume to the Handbook of Counseling and Psychotherapy in an International Context, this book will contain clinical and counseling case studies originating in more than 30 countries. It will be published in 2014.
- Pioneers of International Psychology (Summer 2014)
Grant Rich (Alaska) and Uwe P. Gielen are preparing an edited volume that will focus on significant figures in international psychology ranging from Moritz and Mesmer in the late 18th century to several pioneers who are still active.
- Women around the World: Psychosocial Perspectives
Carrie M. Brown (Agnes Scott College), Uwe P. Gielen, Judith L. Gibbons (St. Louis University), and Judy Kuriansky (Columbia University) are now preparing an edited book designed to provide a global overview of women's status, roles, experiences and attitudes in selected countries located around the world.
- Conversations with International Psychologists (2015)
This planned volume will contain lengthy interviews with 20 prominent psychologists active around the world. Many of them have played a crucial role in the expansion of international psychology organizations and the spread of psychology around the globe.
